Our Purpose:

“To provide children and adolescents with inflammatory rheumatologic conditions a camp experience that facilitates lasting personal growth and independence.”

Camp Dartmouth Hitchcock (Camp DH)

Camp DH is a one-week residential summer camp experience for children with juvenile idiopathic arthritis and other inflammatory connective tissue diseases. Since 1983, Camp DH has hosted up to 53 boys and girls a year from ages 8 to 17.

At Camp DH, campers enjoy traditional activities such as outdoor games, swimming, canoeing, and arts and crafts.

“It was really nice knowing that there are other people in the world just like me.”

In addition, communication and problem-solving skills are challenged through a series of structured activities, such as the ropes course. Campers are encouraged by their peers and staff to confront physical challenges they believe they cannot achieve. This gives the campers a sense of accomplishment and self-confidence that they will keep with them year-round.

Transportation and Communication

Families are responsible for arranging transportation for their campers to and from camp. Please plan travel accordingly. Camp DH welcomes campers from all language backgrounds. To ensure a safe and enjoyable experience for everyone, basic English comprehension is necessary for communication. If your camper is from a non-English-speaking household, we can assist with the registration process.

Camp DH Team

Experienced Counselors and Volunteers staff the camp at the Hulbert Outdoor Center on Lake Morey in Fairlee, VT. Volunteers include physicians, allied health professionals, medical students, nurses, physical and occupational therapists, as well as adult alumni campers.
